VOTE FAVORS CHARTER FORM

BY VOTE OF 232 TO 88 ADA DECLARES FOR IMPROVED SYSTEM OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

Ada favors taking further steps towards the adoption of a charter government. Such was the verdict recorded yesterday by the decisive vote of 232 to 88. Although only about fifty per cent of the votes of the city were cast, the result is sufficiently conclusive to prove that the sentiment of the people favors the change. The election was remarkably quiet, and little work was done by either side.

The vote in the four wards in favor of further proceedings was 46, 55, 86 and 45 respectively. The opposition vote was 38, 14, 12 and 24.

DEMOCRATS WILL CUT APPROPRIATIONS

Washington, Jan. 4.—With the end of the holiday season, the democratic members of the house appropriations committee are getting down to the hard work of reducing the expenses of the government, thus carrying out one of the campaign promises of a year ago last fall. The first draft of the big sundry civil appropriation bill has been completed and printed, and its physical size scared some of the democrats who saw it today. It is three inches thick, it carries about $120,000,000-odd, which is not as much as the last republican sundry civil bill carried.

The fact is, the democrats are throwing so many safeguards about the expenditures of the government that a number of the big supply bills, when measured by inches, are going to be bigger than ever. This will be due to the insertion of qualifying language, which in an act of congress must frequently be very elaborate in order not to leave the controller of the treasury a loophole for authorizing extra expenditures.

The appropriations committee intends to do its part in cutting down appropriations. The estimates of the government departments, which President Taft declared were cut to the bone, will be shaved down $100,000,000 or more in the bills reported by this committee alone. It is planned to make the sum total of these bills about $50,000,000 less than the appropriations of the last congress, which was known as the "billion-dollar congress." Each of the great appropriation bills will carry less than the same bill last year.

But the appropriations committee does not handle all of the big money bills. There are the naval and naval academy bills, from the committee on naval affairs; the army and military academy bills, from the committee on military affairs; the postoffice bill, from the committee on postoffices and postroads; the agricultural bill, from the committee on agriculture, and so on. In each of these measures it is safe to say that cuts will be made. If the leaders have their way, $13,000,000 will be saved at one fell swoop by appropriating for one instead of two new battleships. In addition, the house leaders still hope to effect an arrangement with the senate leaders still hope to effect an arrangement whereby the Sherwood pension bill will be put to sleep in committee.

W. L. Meharg and J. A. Hart were in town between trains this morning. Mr. Meharg stated that his gin has turned out 2,160 bales of cotton this season and will gin a little more yet. The city of Hugo is preparing to put down several blocks of rock asphalt paving.

CHAMP CLARK CLUB MEETS

PERMANENT OFFICERS ELECTED. DISTINGUISHED SPEAKERS INVITED TO VISIT ADA.

The Champ Clark club held a lively meeting last evening and expressed the intention of the club to push the organization of Clark clubs and to awaken more enthusiasm in behalf of the Missouri leader.

At the first meeting, when the temporary organization was formed, a committee on permanent organization was appointed, and at the meeting last evening the committee recommended the following gentlemen for the offices named. J. W. Davis, president; H. J. Brown, first vice president; J. M. Wintersmith, second vice president, F. P. Lieualen, third vice president, Leslie Maxey, secretary; T. D. McKeown, treasurer. The report of the committee was unanimously adopted and the officers installed.

A motion was made that Judge Robert L. Williams and Gen. Brant Kirk be invited to meet the club on the 20th and deliver addresses to the voters of Ada and Pontotoc county. As both men are very popular in this county, and are so well known as speakers, they will undoubtedly draw a crowd.

A motion prevailed that a committee on county organization be appointed, the president of the club to be a member. The committee is composed of J. W. Davis, J. P. Crawford, A. R. Sugg, F. P. Lieualen, C. A. Galbraith and Leslie Maxey. Individual members of this committee say that they will push the work with vigor.

Liquor Convictions Affirmed.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Jan. 4.—In affirming the conviction of C. Maynes in Kingfisher county for illegal conveyance of intoxicating liquors, Judge Armstrong, in the criminal court of appeals, holds that it is unlawful to convey from one place to another liquor purchased illegally, even though the liquor is to be used for a purpose that otherwise would be legal. The opinion also holds that it is not necessary for the indictment or information to charge illegal conveyance when the purchase was illegal.

In affirming the conviction of Jodie Vanderberg, in Jefferson county, of violation of the prohibitory law, Judge Doyle holds in an opinion of the criminal court of appeals that jurors will not be permitted to impeach their own verdict. Upon a hearing of a motion for a new trial a juror testified for the defense that the verdict of the jury was found to save the state the expense of the prosecution and that he did not concur in the verdict. This is not grounds for reversal, according to the opinion of the court.

The conviction of Victor Bonham, in Coal county, of illegal possession of intoxicating liquors was affirmed in a per curiam opinion.

IRON AND STEEL SCHEDULES WILL BE CONSIDERED NEXT

Washington, Jan. 4.—The first of the tariff schedules to come before the full membership of the ways and means committee will be iron and steel, when the committee meets Friday to consider the draft of a bill prepared by a subcommittee which has had the subject under consideration for some time. The sub-committee bill provides for free iron ore and a general reduction from 30 to 50 percent on all steel and iron products. The bill would add to the freelist carpenters' tools and other ordinary articles in common use.

The sub-committee, composed of Representatives Dixon of Indiana, Palmer of Pennsylvania and Hull of Tennessee, agreed Thursday upon the tentative draft of the measure. Chairman Underwood immediately called a meeting of the democratic members to consider the bill and it is probable that it will be ready for presentation in the house next week.

Trains Tied Up by Snow.

Kansas City, Jan. 4.—An Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe freight train that has been snowbound near Laird, Kan., since December 26, was released Thursday. The train crew reported that the snow in western Kansas is covered by mass of ice that will bear the weight of a horse.

Dighton, Jetmore, Ness City and other town on the Santa Fe have been without train service for several days. Unless wagon communication can be established soon, much suffering will result, as supplies are running low.

CHICKASHA ORGANIZES AGAINST AIKEN BILL

Chickasha, Ok., Jan. 4.—A meeting of Chickasha citizens was held last night at the court house to form an organization to fight the Aiken bill. Three hundred dollars was subscribed and active work both in sending out literature and speakers to fight the bill will be begun. The Aiken bill if adopted would abolish the state college for girls located at this point.

Naturally the eNws is gratified at the result of the election for a charter government. In fact, the size of the majority came as a pleasant surprise, because most of what little work has been done has been by the opponents of the plan. It is evident that the people have been giving some thought to the question and made up their minds without much outside influence. The campaign was remarkable for the fact that not a speech was made on either side, but the matter was left mostly for the individual voters themselves to decide. Now that the people have spoken, the matter of writing the charter is up to the freeholders, and their work will be passed on by the voters in a short time. It is not probable that any of the strife which the change caused at Guthrie, Oklahoma City and Lawton will be repeated here, for the people have spoken and their preference should be respected above any legal quibble or technicality that might be dug up by shrewd lawyers.

SUGGS TALKS GOOD

ROADS AT HOME

"Now is the time for the county commissioners and the city commissioners to get together and build a permanent asphalt macadam road from the end of the paved street to the cemetery," said State Commissioner of Highways Sidney Suggs today. "The city has a rock crusher that is lying idle, they also have the teams that could be used on this work. The county commissioners say that their teams will be idle within a few days and inasmuch as the best road building material on earth is so close at hand this work can be done. There is a commissioned state highway engineer who lives in this city, and the department of highways will agree to lend every assistance possible to build a road as good as ever constructed by Caesar or Napoleon.

"This will give a great number of idle men employment and prove a great blessing to all the people who live in the city and surrounding country. If anyone has a doubt as to the necessity of this road being built, a trip over the present highway will convince them that it should be. Now let this piece of work amount to something more than mere talk. Many visitors will come from over the state to see and examine and no doubt adopt this method of building permanent roads throughout the state."—Ardmoreite.

Miss Laura Johnson reports a fine attendance at the Jones Chapel school. Since the holidays the enrollment of the school has increased to fifty-five. She is delighted with her work and praises her pupils highly for the good work they are doing. Miss Johnson's idea is that if the average American is given a chance he will make good.

The publishers would like to give it away, but every paper costs money to print, and if it is worth reading at all, the News is certainly worth the small sum asked for it.

REVIEW OF THE COTTON MARKET FOR YEAR 1911

(By Theodore H. Price.)

The history of cotton is valuable chiefly as it may be a guide for the future. The year 1911 has marked the end of a cotton famine, and an era of comparatively high prices, and the year 1912 seems likely to find the world supplied with sufficient cotton to meet its requirements for the balance of the so-called cotton year, which ends August 30, 1912.

It is probable, in fact, that this year's crop is large enough to supply the demand up to October 31, 1912 or two months after the time at which next year's crop shall be available. This is all that can be expected from the widely advertised surplus of this year's cotton production, and when the fact is stated in this way there would seem to be but little justification for any expectation of lower prices.

In no other important industry that I know of is a surplus the equivalent of two months' consumption after two years of famine regarded as a sufficient justification for panic prices and sales below the cost of production.

The Southern producers of cotton seem to have come to this conclusion largely as a result of the convention of the governors of the cotton states held in New Orleans in October, and the thanks of the entire Southern community, both business men and farmers, are due to the Fort Worth Record and its editor, Mr. Clarence Ousley, for their enterprise in calling and organizing this convention at the opportune moment. Its presentation of the facts of supply and consumption no doubt prevented a panicky decline in the market, and resulted in a deliberate and forehanded treatment of the situation that has enabled the Southern cotton producer to obtain at least cost for that portion of this year's cotton crop which has already been sold.

It has at the same time induced anticipatory buying on the part of terprise that when cotton ceases to be profitable another crop will be grown.

For these reasons, and because it is easily demonstrable that it costs at least 9 cents a pound to produce middling cotton, and just as much to produce low-grade cotton that only sells for 6 cents a pound, when middling cotton sells for nine cents a pound, I think it entirely reasonable to assume the probability of higher prices for the year 1912.

I congratulate the South upon the advance that it has made in the application of economic knowledge to an economic problem. The whole world will be better off for it. A plethora of cotton at extremely low prices in one year affords an injurious stimulus to consumption. A deficiency and extremely high prices in another year result in an equally injurious stimulus to production.

The most thoughtful students of economics are gradually coming to the conclusion that monopolies are essential to the complex civilization of today, but that it is necessary that such monopolies should be wisely and reasonably regulated. If the South, through the diffusion of economic intelligence, can wisely and reasonably regulate the monopoly of cotton production that it enjoys, so that we shall have neither extremely high prices nor yet unprofitable low prices it will have provided an object lesson which will prove most useful, and in the long run it will, in so doing, best consult its own self-interests.

consumers, which in some cases covers their prospective requirements for three and four years ahead. The weight of whatever surplus is attributable to this year's American cotton production has thus been distributed over a long period of time, and the prospect now seems to be that with a reasonable reduction in acreage next year, and an average production, cotton will again rule somewhere between 11 and 12 cents a pound.

The supply of iron, copper and coal in America is practically inexhaustible, but the producers of these commodities are enabled to reap a fair profit upon the enterprise and capital employed in their production through a legitimate control of the supply.

The year 1912 promises to mark a new era in the cotton trade, distinguished chiefly by the application of the same sane principles to cotton production. It used to be assumed that the South could produce nothing but cotton; that it had to produce cotton to live, and that it had to sell it when produced at whatever price was obtainable, whether this price showed a profit or a loss, and that then it was compelled to go on and produce another crop to be sold at a possible loss, and so ad infinitum, but times have changed.

The great economic marvel of the present century is the expansion in the world's demand for cotton goods. The demand is now so great that a surplus of a million bales is far smaller in its relation to the total requirements than was the case fifteen years ago. Moreover, the South is richer and better educated in the principles of economic law. It has learned how to do other things than grow cotton, and its agricultural versatility enable it from year to year so to change the objective of its en-

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION MAY BE POSTPONED

Oklahoma City, Jan. 5.—"I understand that I have been criticised by a certain element of the party for calling the republican convention for the fourth district so early," said A. E. Perry of Coalgate, at the Lee-Huckins. "I have been away from home ten days and do not know how prevalent that feeling is, but if I think that there seems to be a general dissatisfaction over the date selected I shall call the congressional committee together and let it be settled by a majority vote of the committee as to whether the convention shall be held on January 23 as originally called, or on April 23, ninety days later.

"I also understand that criticism of the basis of representation has been made by certain parties in McAlester. That matter is entirely within the discretion of the committee. One thing is sure. The convention will not be controlled by the McAlester delegation, but by the congressional committee up to the time of its organization and after that time by the delegates elected by the republican voters of the district."

On account of it being the first republican convention called this year, the Coalgate convention has attracted a great deal of attention among politicians all over the country. There will be a number of republicans from outside the state in attendance and it is understood that the number will include a man of international reputation, who has been much discussed as a republican presidential candidate.

read and fewer still did the thinking for the "great unwashed."

The cry of high taxes is only a cry of stop thief. Before us is a tax receipt of one of Tonkawa's good citizens. Read it. State tax, $5.12. Township tax, $4.77. School district $26.92.
Special $65.16. Total $141.97. The foregoing is half of the tax on a valuation of $5080.00.

Now, Mr. (groaning) Taxpayer, let us seek the source of the burdensome tax. The state tax is only a little more than ten per cent of the total tax. The state school tax is only $1.16 on a total tax of $141.97. This is .8 of one per cent of the total tax, or to be exact it is 8 mills on the $1.00. Now, Mr.
Taxpayer, does it not strike you that somebody is insincere when he tells us that to abolish a part of the state institutions would be a great relief to the tax payer. No one on earth can prove the fact that your high taxes are due to state taxation. It is true that there is room for economy in some departments of the state government—abundant room. But let not those who would deceive you cry "stop thief" in order to direct your attention to the wrong source of high tax.

It is positively true, from the above receipt, that you would save less than 4 mills on the $1.00 were the 14 state schools abolished. It is positively true that your state tax, judging from this tax receipt, is .8 of one per cent of the total taxes. However, we do not desire to mislead any one. The tax receipt quoted above has a special tax of $65.16. This tax was for sewerage, but you can readily see that the same proportion would hold good with any tax receipt, and it can be easily shown that your school tax is very insignificant sum compared to your local and other taxes.

Just remember this, Mr. Taxpayer, that not a single one of these fellows will stand before an audience with a tax receipt in his hands and attempt to show that high taxes are due to the state schools.

With apologies to William Jennings Bryan let us say "thou shalt not press down upon the brow of innocent childhood the crown of ignorance, thou shalt not Crucify the schools of the masses for a mess of pottage."—Tonkawa Chieftain.

County Seat Row Settled.

Grove, Ok., Jan. 4.—What looked as if it might develop into a serious riot between factions over the location of the county offices at Jay, which by the decision of the supreme court recently was made the county seat of Delaware county, was settled today by the appearance of Adjt. Gen. Canton on the scene.

The fight started when the county records Tuesday were removed from Grove which until now has been the seat of the county offices, and were taken instead of to Jay, to the Creek-more addition, often called "eXw Jay."
This was in violation and against the order of Gov. Lee Cruce, who sent the Adjutant General with a new proclamation directing that the county records be taken to the original townsite of Jay.

The Creekmore people have agreed to obey the order.

CODE OF ETHICS FOR TEACHERS.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 5.—"It shall be beneath the dignity of any teacher and unprofessional for any teacher to underbid another, or attempt to secure a position which another holds or has a fairly good chance of securing or holding."

This is part of a code of ethics adopted for teachers by the Washington Educational association at its 21st annual convention, held at North Yakima, December 27 to 29. The association agreed that too often the teachers gossip with intimate friends or the boarding house lady, or with each other concerning transactions that should concern only the teacher herself, the child and the parents. Other parts of the code are:

"Teachers shall remain loyal to the profession.

Teachers shall remain loyal to the school institution or system with which they may be connected as teachers.

The recommendations of the merits of the work of any teacher shall be as honest as possible and teachers shall refrain from asking for testimonials, but rather ask for the permission to use the names of the parties knowing their work.

The teacher, by conforming to the usual rules of right living, must be permitted to lead the natural life of any citizen free from dictation.

The daily transaction of business in the school room shall be as free from discussion outside the school room as the daily entries or balance sheet of the bank clerk is.

It shall be the duty of any teacher coming into a community to be willing to surrender or forget such of her pleasures as may conflict with the best influence in the community, even though she may be strongly of the opinion that such pleasures are harmless.

Old-Timer Visits in Gainesville.

Hon. Sam Hargis, an old time Gainesville and Cooke county citizen
but who now resides in Oklahoma City, is spending several days here
the guest of his daughter, Mrs. John Stuart of Clement street. Mr. Stuart being a machinist in the Santa Fe shops. Mr. Hargis is well known here having resided here for over twenty years. He came here in 1870 and helped to fight the Indians, also taking a prominent part in the politics of that period. He was in the legislature from Cooke in the years 1886-87,
the time when the new state capitol
was received and when Senator Reagan was sent to the senate. Mr. Hargis built the first mill and gin ever erected in Callisburg, and that was his home for many years, his family practically being raised there. He has not been in Cooke county for many years, and while here he will take a trip over all that old country to see the old-timers.

Mr. Hargis is a native of Texas
having been born in Nacogdoches Nacogdoches county, when the state was a republic. He is 63 years of age.
Since going to Oklahoma Mr. Hargis has lost his mother, his wife and two children. He yet has eight children, four boys and four girls, all of whom reside in Oklahoma, with the exception of Mrs. Stuart here. Mr.
Hargis is now doorkeeper for the Oklahoma legislature.

Mr. Hargis talked a little on politics and declared that the political situation in the new state would warm up pretty soon and talked of the various candidates. One of his most significant utterances was his belief that Champ Clark would carry Oklahoma for president.—Gainesville Reg-

Goover Pea Hay.

If there is a farmer who doubts
that the goober pea is a profitable crop he would do well to call at the Coggin National Bank and take a look at the sample bale of the peas and vines baled together. This bale was shipped to Mrs. Coggin by her brother at Alvarado, who plants considerable of the peanuts each year, for his stock as well as for the market. The goobers are of the Spanish variety and the number of peas on the vine show that variety to thrive in that section.

It is said by people who have used the goober peas as a feed for livestock that the hay is worth more than alfalfa or any kind of hay grown.
When baled with the peas on the vine, it may be fed to hogs and they thrive on it even though it has the appearance of baled hay. The hogs eat the vines as well as the peas.

Mrs. Coggin is going to keep the sample bale on exhibition at the bank
so the farmers may have a practical demonstration of what can be done with the goober pea, which the Commercial Club is just now trying to induce the farmers to plant as a money crop. It is worth investigating, especially since the firm of Walker-Smith & Company has offered to provide a market if a given number of acres will be planted.—Brownwood

SOLD IN TOWN

Just Among Friends

"Well, well, look who's here!" cried Miss Connelly, gayly, as she teetered across the luncheon toward the table about which sat her particular circle of friends. "Move over, kiddo," she adjured little Miss Hoffman. "Make room for your aunty."

Miss Hoffman obeyed, giggling. "Say, Huffy," said Miss Connelly, warningly, as she set down her tray, which contained a hygienically paralyzing collection of foodstuffs, "you better be careful with them ingrowing wheezes of yours. One of 'em's liable to strike in. Well, Mame," she continued after she had begun a determined attack on a large piece of roast pork, "how's the pink crepe de Chine and the blue messaline comin' on?"

"They're all right," replied Miss Peterson. "I was to the dressmaker's last evening. The crepe de Chine fits elegant, but the messaline kinda bucks around the waist."

"Say, ain't that too bad?" cried Miss Connelly. "Don't, for goodness sake, tell me there's anything wrong with the pink net tunic with the jewel embroidery. With my weak heart I don't believe I could stand the shock."

Miss Peterson looked at her suspiciously. "I don't know's you need to bother about it."

Miss Connelly included the group in a comprehensive wink.

"Girls," she said, "ain't it funny how bein' in love makes some folks get sore so as? Now, I thought when Mame really got her hooks on Joe she'd be so tickled that she'd be sweeter'n pie. My! I'm disappointed."

Miss Peterson bit her lip angrily. Miss Frizkie broke into the conversation with the laudable object of smoothing the troubled waters.

"Say, girls," she cried, eagerly, "you'd ought to see the couple of willow plumes Mame got off the sale up in the millinery today. Peach-est!"

"Willow plumes!" ejaculated Miss Larson, who up to this time had been giving her undivided attention to her luncheon. "Say, you are goin' some, ain't you, Mame? Who's goin' to get Joe's supper while you're settin' round in your pink net tunics and willow plumes?"

"Why, ain't you ashamed of yourself, Stell Larson?" broke in Miss Connelly. "Where did you get such common ideas? Didn't you know Joe's took a suite at the swellest hotel in town for the winter? You don't suppose he expects Mame to do anything so unladylike as her own cookin'? You'd better confine yourself to makin' noises like a deaf and dumb party if you don't know no better'n that."

"Oh, pickles!" sniffed Miss Larson. "You talk like a fish, Nell Connelly. But, on the square, Mame, I should think you'd rather wait a while on the chance of locatin' a fellow who could, maybe buy you some clothes after twenty years or so, instead of stockin' up for the rest of your life."

"Well, if it comes to that, Stell Larson," said Miss Peterson, tensely, "I don't know as that pinhead I see you comin' down on the car with ever day looks like he was goin' to be able to buy swell clothes any more than other folks' friends."

"Oh, cut it, folks," interrupted Miss Frizkie. "Seems like this bunch ought to be able to get together once in a while without scrapin'."

Miss Connelly nodded approvingly. "That's where you soaked the tack on the bean, Jen," she said. "Merry like the sunbeams like us ought to be able to have a quiet, friendly meet without endin' up in a sluggin' match. But on the level, Mame," she added, turning to Miss Peterson, "when are you and Joe plannin' to pull off that little matrimonial celebration?"

"I don't know's you need worry about it," snapped Miss Peterson.

"Oh, I ain't goin' to bother none," returned Miss Connelly. "But it hurts me to see a nice, industrious girl like you work so hard to land a fellow and have such awful poor luck. There ain't anything I wouldn't do to help you. Now, if you get a strange hold on him some time and don't dare let go for fear he'll ditch you, you send me a hurry up call and I'll be tickled to come around and hang on to him while you run and get the preacher."

Miss Peterson rose so suddenly that her chair fell over with a crash.

"Look here, Nell Connelly," she said, furiously, "some day you'll find you're altogether too smart. I want you to understand that I don't pick fights with nobody, because that ain't my nature, but when I do scrap I scrap to a finish. It's about time for you to quit this funny business. I suppose you think you make a terrible hit with your smart remarks, but I could tell you some different!"

"Anyway, when I get as old as some folks maybe I'll have to call in somebody to help me land a fellow. When I get as old as some folks I hope I'll know enough to mind my own business."

With this luminous speech Miss Peterson gave the prostrate chair a kick and flounced away.

"Meanin' everybody excepted except present company," remarked Miss Connelly, calmly. "Girls, pass me Mame's pie that she forgot to eat."

GIANT TREE OF THE TROPICS

Product of Madeira Island Rivals America's Great Redwoods in Age and Size.

Lisbon.—When Madeira island is mentioned, people usually associate with it the name of the wine which was made from its luscious grapes, before the blight practically destroyed the vines. They have given little, if any, thought to the real meaning or derivation of the word Madeira.

The Portuguese were the first of the white race to colonize the picturesque island northwest of Africa, and the pioneers found the mountains and valleys covered with forests of giant trees. So pronounced was this feature that they gave the island the name of Madeira, which means timber in their language. Some imposing remnants of the great forests still remain and among the most interesting are the dragon trees, a specimen of which may be seen pictured in this column.

This tree is more than a century old, and some of greater age, still standing, are much larger. A tree of this same species recently blew down in the island of Tenerife and scientists have estimated that its growth began before the birth of Christ. In circumference, age and quantity of timber the dragon trees rival many of the great redwoods of California, and their huge bulbs of spreading branches often make them appear much larger. They are the products of tropical regions where heat and moisture contribute to their growth.

HIS MEMORY IS RESTORED

Then Husband of Pennsylvania Girl Recalls He Has a Wife and Family in Scotland.

Seattle, Wash.—One of the most remarkable cases of forgotten identity was disclosed in Pierce county when Jane Patterson Scott began divorce proceedings against George Scott. The young woman, whose home was in Allegheny, Pa., came west a year ago. She met Scott, a wealthy lumber manufacturer, in Vancouver, B. C., and married him. Later he became ill. She nursed him back to health only to have him remember suddenly that he was married 36 years ago in Scotland and that he had a wife and children there.

He declares his name is Scott, the complaint says, but cannot explain how he came to forget his first wife so long a period. He does not recall any fall or illness that would have tended to impair his memory. His second wife was obtuse that there was nothing for them to do but to separate and she would secure a divorce.

Meantime Mr. Scott will return to Scotland and institute search for his wife and children. The agreement with the second wife is that if he finds them he will atone for his long absence by settling in his native land; if he is unsuccessful in his search he will return and will again marry his second wife.

BUILDING UNDER 3 FLAGS

Old Cahokia Court House Has Served Under French, English and American Banners.

Chicago.—An interesting building to be seen in Jackson Park, this city, is the Cahokia court house, reputed the oldest public building in the Mississippi valley.

This ancient structure was built about the year 1716 at Cahokia, Ill., and has served in various public capacities under three flags—the French, British and American. At different periods it was used for both civil and military purposes and is recognized as the oldest county seat building (St. Clair county, Ill.) in the original northwest territory. It has been called "fort" and "garrison" by early French, British and American authorities and early documents attest its use as a public schoolhouse.

Old Cahokia Court House.

The building is constructed of squared walnut logs set on end in the early French manner of stockade construction. The logs are held together with wooden pins.

KIDNEY IS REPLACED

Transplanting Operation by Surgeon Is Successful.

One of Most Remarkable and Interesting Clinics in Surgery Conducted by Dr. L. J. Hammond, at Philadelphia Recently.

Philadelphia.—One of the most remarkable clinics in surgery that ever has been held in this city, and by far the most interesting that has been seen in the recent visit of the surgeons of this country and Canada who attended the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, was that conducted in the Methodist Episcopal hospital by Dr. L. J. Hammond, chief of staff of the hospital, and a member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania.

Three difficult operations, each involving a new phase in a field of surgery that by most of the visiting surgeons was thought still to be in the embryonic and experimental stage, were the work of the noted Philadelphia surgeon. Like his recent clinic Dr. Hammond's work held the onlookers, many of them older and of longer practice in the profession than himself, spellbound.

From the moment he made an incision into a man's back to remove a diseased kidney until he completed the three operations the drop of a pin could have been heard in the great amphitheater of the hospital. Except for the breathing of those in the room, the slow, measured tread near the operating table of Dr. Hammond, his assistant, Dr. C. H. Gray, or the nurses who were attending, there was absolute quiet.

Chief attention was centered on the operation involving the transplanting of a kidney. This operation included anastomoses of joinings of blood vessels, and the connecting of the veins, arteries and other ducts and glands was highly satisfactory. The patient's recovery, the surgeons said today, seemed certain.

Dr. Hammond transplanted into the patient's body the kidney of a man who was killed in an automobile accident. The man operated on had suffered from tuberculosis of the kidney for several years, and had been under treatment by eminent specialists. Dr. Hammond, who has been experimenting with transplantations, suggested the operation for transplantation.

The kidney of a man who had been killed was used in place of one of several sound kidneys that had been kept in cold storage for the purpose. The occurrence, according to physicians, though unfortunate for the man who was killed by the motor car, was most fortunate for the subject of the operation, since the kidney of a man killed by accident was much better than that of a man who died of a malignant disease or of old age or the effect of other illness.

This is practically the first time that an operation of this kind has been made, and according to Dr. Hammond's associates, the new kidney, through the perfect anastomoses of the vessels and ducts, will functionate as well as an ordinary healthy kidney.

Dr. Hammond's two other operations were similar to others performed last week, one involving the removal of a cancerous growth from the breast of a woman.

TRAMP BEGS OF OWN MOTHER

Wealthy Oregon Woman Identifies as Her Son Mendicant Who Pleads With Her for Food and Lodging.

Seattle, Wash.—The strange case of the lost identity of S. Chandler Rogers of New York city which came to light here a fortnight ago, has a remarkable parallel in that of Bernard Marvin, a graduate engineer of the University of California.

Mr. Marvin, as a tramp, applied to his own mother, Mrs. C. E. Leiberg, now the widow of a wealthy physician of Eugene, Ore., for food and lodging. He did not recognize her, but she recognized in him her long missing son, Bernard Marvin. He insisted that his mother was dead. Mrs. Leiberg proved the tramp to be her son by birth marks found on his arms and neck. He ran away from her, but was caught by the authorities, and is now in a hospital for observation.

His mother thinks that maybe a blow on the head may be responsible for Mr. Marvin's condition. He cannot remember back any further than the Russo-Japanese war. The surgeons who are observing Marvin are confident this is another case of amnesia, such as Mr. Rogers had for 14 years, and they are hopeful that an operation may restore his identity.

Stays at Home 31 Years. Jackson, Mo.—Fritz Metje, one of the oldest citizens of Jackson, has not been beyond the city limits until the other day since his marriage 51 years ago.

Last year Mr. and Mrs. Metje celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, to which came their descendants from many places. The old man has not been a recluse, but has lived happily on his place of ten acres within the town limits.

He has raised a large family of children, whose visits he greatly enjoys. But he says he has found complete happiness in his home, and has had no occasion to leave. Recently he visited a sick daughter, who resides within a few miles of town.

WHY HUSBAND TIRES

Playless Youth Makes Restless Married Man.

Mrs. Mary Austin, Playwright and Authoress, Explains Unhappy Marriages—Boys Assume Burden of Life Too Early.

New York.—The reason why so many husbands forty to fifty years of age tire of their wives and, in many cases, desert them is, according to Mrs. Mary Austin, because boys are made to assume the burden of life too early. Just as a young colt may be ruined by premature breaking to harness, so the moral fiber of youth may be weakened permanently by assuming too early the obligations of maturity, she thinks.

Mrs. Austin, who wrote "The Arrow Maker," and who is also the author of several novels, has been making a study of conditions in the domestic relations court recently.

"Youth," she said, "should be a period of efflorescence. When young people, girls as well as boys, are put to work too early the business life tends to destroy in them certain secondary sex characteristics which are of utmost importance to the race.

"For instance, take sentiment and romance in girls. In hundreds of young girls, working under the supervision of men, the romantic feeling cannot be fostered. It must, on the contrary, be suppressed, perhaps ultimately destroyed, for the girl's own protection. Men bring out in the girl of sixteen or so the characteristics which appeal to them, their flirtiness, pertness, smartness. There are other qualities, more sentimental and poetic, which only women can bring out in girls. So, if a girl of sixteen has to go to work it should be under the direction of women.

"Boyhood has certain qualities of enthusiasm, of resistance to authority—a good thing, since if one generation accepted blindly the ideals of another, there would be no progress. But this enthusiasm, this eager questioning of life, has no place in business. I think society owes it to itself to preserve the vitality of its young people for the benefit of the race.

"All boys and girls inherit certain racial traits, certain hereditary traits, which they should have a chance to work out before they take up the burden of life. Everybody, for instance, goes through a period when he wants to live in a tent and shoot bows and arrows.

"A state or city should, I think, foster the development of sentiment between boys and girls.

"Every city should have a social center where poor boys and girls could meet, under proper chaperonage, to do their courting. It should be unnecessary for young persons, no matter how poor, to meet each other and do their courting in the streets.

"If we paid more attention to preserving the vitality, to fostering the poetic ideals of our boys and girls, we would not have nearly so many unhappy marriages, so many wife desertions.

"You must have noticed how often the man of forty or fifty, who has led a strong and good life, goes astray morally. That's because he was broken to harness too early. He had no time to work out his hereditary traits. Some persons may think I mean to encourage immorality in young people, but that is far from my idea."

"Then you don't mean that we must give a boy time to sow his wild oats in his hereditary traits?"

"Not at all. His vitality may be directed in good and proper channels. I mean that boys and girls must have some time to play, to write poetry, to sentimentalize. We must not thrust the burden of life upon them too early, if we do not want them to sink under or run away from it."

DOG ROBS MANY HEN ROOSTS

Animal Had Been Agent of Band of Thieves in Stealing Chickens, Turkeys and Other Poultry.

Hempstead, L. I.—One of the boldest thieves ever encountered by the police of Valley Stream, L. I., was captured after a consultation among officers, was tied to a stake outside the station and shot dead. He was a dog known as "Black Fox."

According to reports the animal had been the agent of a band of thieves in stealing several thousand chickens, ducks and turkeys.

Policeman Ryan saw the dog go to one chicken yard eight times and each time leave with a fat chicken in its mouth. Tracing the dog's footprints through the mud to a clump of woods, Ryan found two large gunysacks filled with 40 chickens. The owner of the dog had disappeared.

Opals From Sicily.

Kansas City, Mo.—After working patiently for 15 years, never for a moment forgetting his cherished ambition, William Rose, a lawyer of Independence, Mo., has discovered a secret process of manufacturing opals of the precious variety. About all he will tell is that the opals are made of silica.

Judge Overslept Himself.

Elkins, W. Va.—Judge John H. Holt overslept and was forced to charter a special train in order to reach here from Grafton, W. Va., at the time set for his marriage to Mrs. Nannie Brown, widow of a prominent lawyer.

$400,000 FOR HER HUSBAND

Young German Girl Forfeits Right to Fortune to Marry Man of Her Choice—Met Him by Accident.

Galveston, Tex.—Isabella Koenig, a winsome girl of 20, gave up a fortune estimated to be worth about $400,000 for the love of a young man she met while on her way from her home in Germany to join an aunt who had selected her as an heir.

The aunt, Mrs. George Elsberg, is a wealthy widow without children residing near Fredericksburg, Tex., and owns several farms and landed interests. She is 70 years old and has selected her favorite niece, the youngest daughter of her sister, living near Hanover, Germany, the heir to her estate, and arrangements were made for the girl to come over and make her home with her wealthy relative and become acquainted with the estate of which she would become owner upon the death of her aunt.

At Bremen the young heiress met and fell in love with Wendon Phillips, whose home is in Los Angeles, and who is employed in the real estate office of his father. Phillips was returning from a vacation trip and had engaged passage in the steamship Hanover, bound for Galveston. It appeared to be love at first sight for both the lovers.

Upon returning here it was found that the aunt seriously objected to the marriage. The niece and her fiancé visited the aged lady and had a long interview, but she declared she would disown the girl and cut her off without a cent in her will if she married within five years, so the heiress made the sacrifice and the ceremony was performed; but the aunt did not attend and did not relent, and the newly wedded couple took their departure for California without receiving her blessings.

HUCKSTERS' CRIES IN NAVY

Ropes and Sails on Turkish Fleet Are Named for Vegetables and the Result Is Amusing.

London.—The discussion incident to the present unpleasantness between Italy and Turkey of the unpreparedness of the Turkish fleet has recalled an unusual difficulty experienced by the founders of the original Ottoman navy.

They were hampered by the fact that there were no words in the Turkish dictionary for the various ropes and sails of the warships of that day. An ingenious officer solved the problem by tying different vegetables to the various ropes and spars of the rigging, and the sailors received orders to "Hoist the tomato!" "Let go the potato!" until a more formal vocabulary could be supplied.

Novel as this procedure was, it was not an innovation, as it was exactly the method adopted by Almeida, the Portuguese admiral and discoverer, when he was outfitting a fleet for just such a descent on the Turkish colony of Mozambique as the Italians made on Tripoli.

It was at the beginning of the sixteenth century and Portugal still lacked a navy, and the Portuguese tongue was devoid of naval terms. This fact did not daunt the doughty Admiral Almeida, and, hanging up strings of garlic and onions on the port and starboard sides, respectively, of his ships, he instructed his helmsmen to "garlic" or "onion" the helm, as necessity commanded.

JAVA GROWN TEA IS GAINING

It May Displace Japan Product in Popularity Before Long—Cultivation Increasing Fast.

The Hague.—Java comes immediately after Japan as a tea producing country and takes the fourth place in the tea exporting countries of the world, of which British India with Ceylon is first and China second. It looks now as if Java would soon beat Japan in the markets of the world, for the cultivation of tea is increasing rapidly, and the product is gaining in quality. At present the United States is the only nation to which Japan exports its tea and perhaps it will not continue to patronize Japan very much longer, because its tea has been found to be "colored" and is lacking in flavor.

In Java it is otherwise; both the government and the planters are co-operating to insure improvements in the growth, preparation and packing of the product. Java tea can now be kept for upward of two years and even improve in flavor by the keeping. This has been found out already in Australia, which promises to become the principal tea market for Java.

Tea grows exceedingly well in the Dutch Indies, especially in the Trenggeng province of Java, where there are already 400 tea estates. The export in 1910 was 41,000,000 pounds.

Raise Price of Shaving.

London.—There will be a host of new recruits to the ranks of those pains-taking individuals who shave at home if a proposed general advance in barbers' prices is carried into effect.

The executive committee of the London and Suburban Master Hairdressers' association is taking steps to ascertain what support raising the charges by 50 per cent., so that six cents would be charged, would receive from its members.

Many individual hairdressers have expressed themselves in favor of the higher price, for they find the increased cost of living demands an increased cost of shaving.

Managing Willie

"I was over at Mrs. Kershaw's the other day," said the woman with the little boy who was calling on her next door neighbor, "and I must say that she has changed of late years! Why, when I knew her as a girl she had such ability and was such a manager—and you ought to see the way that house is run and the perfectly dreadful way she has with her children!"

"I don't believe in the old fashioned way of frightening children to pieces and making them obey you because they are afraid. I never have the least trouble with my Willie, because I treat him like a human being. Darling, don't handle the fern for Mrs. Jones may not like it. Everybody isn't like mother, who understands how interested little boys are in nature. Stop bending the leaf, dearest—oh, now, see! You've broken the whole stalk off! There, Willie, you see what happens when you don't obey mother!"

"It's perfectly wonderful, Mrs. Jones, the reasoning power displayed by that child! You wouldn't think it, but he understands cause and effect perfectly. He bent the leaf—and it broke—an act and a result, you see. Willie, why did you break all those other leaves, too? Oh, so the plant would be even all around! Now, did you ever hear anything cleverer than that, Mrs. Jones? Willie has such an eye for form. I am sure he is going to be something wonderful, aren't you? I always believe in encouraging a child when he shows any signs of developing a particular faculty."

"There! Willie is investigating your cuckoo clock now. He has a passion for finding out the reason for things. Willie, darling, you mustn't swing of the weights of the clock, you really mustn't."

"There! What did mother tell you? You swung on the weights and now you've pulled the whole clock down off the wall! You are likely to give people headaches when you make a big noise like that. Every one hasn't the perfect control of her nerves that mother has."

"There's everything in control, don't you think so, Mrs. Jones? I never allow any external fact to upset me. Oh, is the clock broken? Well, I don't believe it is a very bad break and a clever clock man can easily—oh, you say you brought it from Switzerland and it has a complicated foreign mechanism? Well, it does seem to me that Americans ought to be able to find enough goods manufactured in this country without encouraging anarchists and paupers abroad. I've often heard my husband talk about political affairs, so I suppose I am better informed than most women."

"The way Mrs. Kershaw lets her children run over her is perfectly dreadful. She didn't seem to have the least control of them at all. I—"

"Willie, you mustn't scratch the piano with that pin. Mother means what she says, darling, and I expect you to obey. Not another scratch after that one you are making! I've no doubt if your furniture polish is the right kind, Mrs. Jones, it will rub the scratches out perfectly and, anyhow, they are such delicate ones. Willie has such a dainty touch with everything that sometimes I think he is going to be an artist."

"Why, Wil—ll-e-e-e! Didn't you hear me say not another scratch? And you've made at least six more! Now, I simply will not be disobeyed that way and you may go sit in the green velvet chair. Climb back and sit there! You see, Mrs. Jones, I always punish promptly when Willie doesn't mind me."

"If you had children yourself you'd understand how it warms a mother's heart to feel the little things depending on one and taking one's word as gospel law. Why, Willie would no sooner think of going contrary to my wishes than he would think of flying, would you, dear?"

"My goodness, where is Willie? He isn't in the green velvet chair. You haven't a cellar door or anything open have you, Mrs. Jones, that he might fall down? I can't understand—oh, you say he is on the other side of the piano scratching it with another pin?"

"Willie, come here—at once! Don't you know you grieve mother terribly when she finds that she can't trust you? Oh, you say you wanted to see if a black pin would make the same kind of a scratch as a white one! Did you ever—that investigating mind again! It makes me feel terribly responsible, Mrs. Jones, to think that it rests with me whether that shall all be mistakenly crushed out or encouraged."

"I've so enjoyed this little visit with you—it rests one to get a change from one's usual thoughts, you know. Come over soon—it will brighten you up and interest you to be where there is a child, and Willie is such a lovable little fellow."

"Kiss Mrs. Jones, darling. Why, what are you sticking out your tongue for? You say because you hate her? Oh, Willie, it is wrong to hate any one! Hasn't he a cunning, pink little tongue, Mrs. Jones?"

"Some day when I'm going out I'll let you take him and keep him for a whole afternoon!"

MRS. ELLEN OLNEY

PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Ellen Olney died Wednesday night about 9 o'clock. The funeral services were held this afternoon at the residence by Rev. Jas. Rayburn and the body borne to its resting place in Rosedale cemetery.

Deceased was seventy-one years of age. She was born at Elmwood, Peoria county, Illinois, and came to Ada ten years ago. Mrs. Olney was for many years a consistent Christian and her life was an exemplification of her faith. She was a devoted mother and her life was a benediction not only to her home but to her neighbors as well, for all who knew her felt her quiet influence and loved her because of her many acts of kindness and her sympathetic nature.

Mrs. Olney is survived by two daughters, Miss Louise, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Shults of Guthrie, who with her family, is here to perform the last sad office for her devoted parent.

CELEBRATED MUSICIANS WILL VISIT ADA

The second number of the lyceum course contracted for by the Twentieth Century club of Ada will be given tomorrow evening. Owing to, the break in the boiler at the normal it will be impossible to use the auditorium, as originally planned, but the High school building will be used instead.

This attraction is the Skovgaard Concert party, consisting of the famous Danish violinist, Axel Skovgaard, Miss Alice McClung, pianist, and Miss May Warner, soprano.

Skovgaard is one of the musical celebrities of Europe. He has appeared before the most select and critical audiences of the continent, and won the applause of the Emperor of Germany, who recognized as one of the greatest and most competent of musical critics. In the United States he has confined his work mostly to the larger cities, winning fresh laurels wherever he appeared. He uses a $13,000 Stradivarius violin in his concerts, an instrument few in this section ever saw. As stated before, the ladies are not engaging in any money making scheme. They are raising funds with which to aid deserving girls to secure an education, and at the same time give their town the benefit of some high grade and elevating lyceum numbers.

C. F. Green and J. A. McClure, attorneys, have formed a partnership and will be found at C. F. Green's old office in the Rollow building. Mr. Green has resided in Ada for the past four years, during which time he has made a wide circle of friends that has enabled him to build up a good practice since being admitted to the bar. Mr. McClure came to Ada from Chickasha a few months ago, and he also has an extensive acquaintance. The two attorneys will form a strong firm.

Oklahoma may be a part of the "Sunny South," but any northern visitor to this section would be hard to convince of the fact. This winter reminds one somewhat of that of five years ago, when one saw the sun about two hours a week. However, if it presages a big crop, no one has any kick.

RIT ERWIN,
County Treasurer.

Artistically the most brilliant event of the season was the Skovgaard violin recital last night. From the time this artist begins to "talk" to you with his violin until he stops, you are compelled whether you will or no, to listen. His art is mature, and his playing last evening was virile, magnetic and deeply emotional. His program embraced charming selections from Mendelssohn, Chopin, Sarasate, Schubert, Wieniawski, and others besides his own compositions--Copenhagen, Denmark, Vort Land.

FOR YOUR HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp are glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore hair growth. But, when the hair roots retain any life, we believe there is nothing that will so surely promote hair growth as will Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. To prove that statement, we propose to promptly return all money you pay us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, should it not please you.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic destroys the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and, by promoting circulation, nourishing them.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic helps to relieve scalp irritation, to remove dandruff, to prevent the hair from falling out, and to promote an increased growth of hair. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store--The Rexall Store--Gwin & Mays Drug Co.

BANKRUPT SALE

Entire Stock of Sweatt & Stubblefield, which We Bought at 33 CENTS on the Dollar

This comes at the opportune time, just when we are inaugurating our annual After-Christmas Clearing Sale. We are placing this entire stock that was sold by order of the creditors through W. C. DUNCAN, ATTORNEY, and which we were fortunate enough to secure, at above named figures. Everybody knows that the goods are brand new, because the firm have only been in business a short time. The lines involved here are Silver, Elgin and Monarch Shirts; Arrow Brand and Silver Brand Collars, Hats, Neckwear, one lot of tailor made suits, and as complete and perfect a line of men's furnishings as you ever saw. In addition to this, we have marked down our entire stock of men's and women's garments, and shoes; we have also cut into some staple lines like Domestic, Dress Goods, etc. The entire assemblage of goods placed on sale offers an unusual saving opportunity. Be sure to attend opening day of this sale, because the goods are all staples and the prices are the lowest you ever heard of. They will go rapidly.

Sale Opens Saturday, January 6

Remember, it's the entire line of Men's Furnishings offered at 33 per cent discount. The lines from our own stocks represent a saving of from 40 to 60 per cent.
